Study Languages!

Why study languages?

There are many reasons why you should study a language. For example studying languages will expand the career opportunities for you (studying abroad), it will allow you to meet and get to know new people from all over the world, and it will also build your confidence when travelling.

The career opportunities will expand, because you will be able to work in many different countries, as well as being able to work with many different people from all over the world.

Careers

When you work abroad, studying languages will make it so much more easier. There are so many international companies/businesses that have branches all over the world. Also, learning different languages will help you communicate with people from all over the world. Many businesses/companies often look for employees that can speak many different languages so that it is not a problem when communicating with others.

Conclusion

Overall, this exchange has been a very good experience, because we have had the opportunity to visit another country and experience the different culture, as well as trying new foods and meeting new people. We have learned that The Netherlands is Euregional, which means that it works with different countries from Europe, but it also works with countries outside of Europe, in order to improve the position that it is in, such as its international relationships.

Nunhems Zaden

We have learnt a lot when visiting Nunhems Zaden. For example, we learnt about what things are needed to become an international company, and what it is like. There are many things needed, such as right amount of money and knowledge which country needs which product. We had a tour around the company, taught about the process of making the seeds, where it is sold to, who works there, etc. We found out that the majority of workers at Nunhems Zaden had actually come from different countries, such as China and India. The work depends on the departure your in.

Fontys Venlo

When visiting Fontys University in Venlo, we realised that so many students were from different parts of the world, such as Romania and Bulgaria. Many of the classes are taught in English, so this makes it very easy for the students to learn English. We learned that the University is open to all sorts of different people, and they are very laid back in terms of accepting people for who they are, and encouraging them to work hard in order to progress both academically and socially.

About Roermond and the Mayor

Roermond is a city in Limburg/the Netherlands. The first day of the Erasmus+ Project we went to see the mayor of Roermond and she hold a speech for us about Roermond. The mayor completed the speech at the city hall, and she spoke about many different things to do with the city Roermond, how it works, who is involved with it, etc. We also got the chance to ask her questions such as what the population is made of. Roermond is a multicultural city and is very near the borders of the countries Germany and Belgium. There are many international living and studying opportunities in and around Roermond. The Designer Outlet Center is one of the most popular shopping centers and is based in Roermond. There are many tourists visiting Roermond to see The Designer Outlet and get the A-brand clothing for an outlet price. The biggest group of tourists are from Germany and also from Asia. The cities around Roermond, such as Venlo and Maastricht offer many international opportunities such as studying in English. There is also a festival hold in Roermond. Solar is a festival where many music lovers meet each other. Many bands and artists have a show and everyone enjoys the water and sand of the Maasplassen. So that clears that Roermond is Euregional as well.
